Knives with scalloped blades feature many curved edges protected by sharp points that help to break through bread's hard crust. As these points break through, the curved edge slices the soft interior without damaging it. Features like offset handles or curved blades allow the user to cut completely through a loaf of bread without contacting the cutting board.

Heat Treatment is the process of controlled heating and cooling of metals in order to change their physical and mechanical properties. The desired properties for the manufacture of professional cutlery are strength, resistance to wear, and flexibility. This process is key to the production of a small, tight, and consistent grain structure that promotes long edge life.
